Bennett House,
SALEM OREGON
L JAY S. TURNEY,

HAVING LEASED THE ABOVE NAMED HOTEL is prepared to accommodate the travelling public and owing to the central location of the House on the Coast it has determined to make the Bennett as good as the best and better than any public house in Salem He will keep complete some important improvements which will add greatly to its appearance and comfort and intends to merit and hopes to receive his share of patronage

He has secured the services of Charley (known to be the best cook in Salem and one of the best in the whole country) and other competent persons to manage the cuisine department and is resolved to set as good a table as can be found anywhere—not in clap-trap pomp a dish of flummery and fine furniture but in an abundant supply of the very best the market affords.

His Bar-room will be kept warmed and lighted and well supplied with newspapers periodicals and other suitable reading matter and kept in a manner which will make it an agreeable resort

In short, he intends making an effort to please ALL who stop at the BENNETT HOUSE And he most respectfully requests his friends everywhere to give the old and well known stand at least one more trial before concluding they can do as well elsewhere and promises if they are not well treated and properly cared for and at reasonable figures it will not be the fault of the public s most obedient and most humble servant,

Morrissey—A Pen Picture of the Pugilistic Congressman

I had the great pleasure of seeing one of New York's distinguished Representatives—John Morrissey—the other day in one of the reading rooms of the Astor House I had seen him some years ago, when he was traveling on his muscle—when he wore short cropped hair and had two fists like two battering rams In the Democratic Congressman of to day I tried to recognize the pugilist of ten years since but I couldn't—nor could I even detect the poker player of yesterday John looks quite respectable for a New York politician As between him and Fernando Wood if I had to walk arm in arm with both, and rely solely upon my knowledge of physiognomy as an index of character, I should unhesitatingly carry my pocket book on the Morrissey side of my pantaloons Of course John doesn't look like a gentleman except upon the modern theory that every male person of twenty-one years and upward who doesn't perform some outrageously indecent act, is a gentleman, or upon the principle adopted by hotel clerks in the distribution of rooms that whoever wears good broadcloth is ipse facto an eminently respectable individual and entitled to the first floor front His features are anything but classical, and you can tell at a glance that he hasn't hurt the right of those large dull-looking, but without kindly and sympathetic eyes of his (they were "peepers" a few years ago) in studying Homer by lamp light But there is nothing positively bad or brutal looking about him and his manners and deportment are far from what must be most persons' ideal of the ways and means of a whole on pugilist He is a little above the medium hight rather stoutly built, always neatly but not gaudily dressed, and will readily pass in a crowd for a decent sort of a person, especially if it be known that he came from New York There are two features about him by which he can be recognized by those who have heard of him but have never seen him One is artificial—the other natural He is never known to be without an immense diamond pin, said to be worth $20 000, in his shirt and he wears about the longest and straightest black hair I have ever seen on any man The pin shines out from his bosom in the dark alleys of the 'Bloody Sixth' like a calcium light and is really about the only light ever seen by many of his constituents And by the way, it wouldn't be safe for anybody but John Morrissey to wear so valuable an ornament after night-fall among his constituents

John s long black hair and heavy black whiskers and mustache the former covering the back of a rather bullish neck and the latter concealing a mouth quite ungenteel in its proportions serve the double purpose of hiding the defects and presenting positive attractions for they make him what the ladies would call a good looking man. He is a handsomer man than the President and it would not surprise me at all to learn within a year that he has supplanted the humble individual in the esteem of Mrs Cobb Let Andrew be warned in time and get a $20,000 pin and a bottle of hair dye.

I have said that Morrissey could be recognized by his hair and his diamond I should have added a nasal peculiarity, the knowledge of which would aid materially in selecting him from a crowd And, perhaps, it would enable one to pick him out even from a crowd of black haired and diamond pin It is the queerest nose I have seen in a long time—perhaps the queerest I have ever seen It is not Roman, not Grecian, not pug nor aquiline, but appears to me rather like a subjugated pug reconstructed on the Grecian principle It is the smallest of all noses, and almost justifies the belief on the part of those who know John's history that, having been deprived of his own proboscis in a prizefight, he did his best toward making up the loss by waylaying some young lady and possessing himself of her olfactory organ Even if he did this, however, he spoiled the article in making the transfer, and hence the notable nose he wears to-day. Morrissey has, of late days, foresworn gambling and betaken himself to a virtuous life in a palatial residence in Lexington Avenue with a fortune estimated at $2,000,000. He recently gave $7,000 as a donation to the church of St Somebody or other in this city, being moved to the generous deed, I believe by the announcement that Senator Wilson had got religion Desirous of going to Heaven, he yet scorned Wilson's Yankee free grace road and, with the liberality of a prince, he came forward and paid his way to the golden gates of Paradise —Cor Cincinnatis Commercial

TERRIBLE CASUALTY.—A correspondent of the Utica Observer writes from Holland Patent, under date of November 12th, as follows

Last Saturday afternoon witnessed one of the most appalling casualties that ever occurred in our midst resulting in the death of Mrs Nathaniel Ward, jr., of the town of Floyd, about three miles from this village and the daughter of Deacon Charles Higby, of this place Mrs Ward left home alone in a buggy, for the purpose of attending a society meeting of the Baptist Church of which she was a most estimable member, and there by appointment to meet her husband and daughter, who had been absent from home since morning At a point about half way to her destination, as shown by fragments of her clothing portions of the dashboard marks on the roadway, etc she was by some means unknown thrown, or attempting to get out of the buggy and her hoop skirt catching on the outer end of the spring bar, and thus for the distance of a mile and a half was furiously dragged over a rough and stony road to the outer bounds of this village, where, becoming disengaged by the parting of the strings of her skirt she was left stripped of most of her clothing, and, strange to relate, even of both gaiters and stockings, and so bruised and lacerated and contorted by fright and suffering as to defy any description or even recognition by her personal friends Crowds of friends and sympathizers soon gathered around the unconscious sufferer Dr Crane was summoned, and at once responded but ere his arrival her spirit had sped its way, and though every expedient known to the profession or to the dictates of humanity was resorted to, all efforts were in vain I hope never again to witness such unfathomed agonies as in this instance seemed to crush the hearts of husband, daughter, father, mother, sister and brother who were summoned and soon stood around the lifeless form of their dearly beloved And may He who tempers the winds to the shorn lamb support and comfort them in this their dire bereavement, and impress upon the living the solemn truth that in the midst of life we are in death" Mrs Ward was about thirty five years old, and leaves three children to mourn her loss

WESTWARD THE STAR OF EMPIRE," ETC.—For the week ending the 10th inst, as stated by the St Joseph Herald, over eight hundred wagons many of them belonging to emigrants en route for Southern Kansas crossed the Missouri at the Elwood Ferry That is but one point where the indications of the rising swell of immigration is to be noticed Steamboats and rail cars are crowded with a moving population who are seeking the rich lands on our western border for permanent settlement and every road seems to be thronged with those old style vehicles with which the earlier settlers penetrated the wilds toward the setting sun The man who lives ten or twelve years longer will witness wonders in the way of extended civilization and will probably be able to travel from the Mississippi to the Rocky Mountains through a continuous line of enterprising communities And what then? Since the beginning of September last more than twenty thousand head of cattle have been ferried over the river at St Joe all of them from the Texas reserve lands and all destined for the Eastern markets Texas borders on New Mexico and is separated from Colorado but a small distance The wild and nutritious grasses of the State are found all over the Territories and stock without the expense of winter feeding can be raised to any extent required The river bottoms are as good agricultural lands as are to be found anywhere, and thus for pastoral uses and the cultivation of grain the great plains so long considered and represented as sterile and useless may be profitably appropriated and made subservient to the manufactures of large populations—St Louis Democrat Nov 16th

Buffalo has a poor house that is worth having in The Express says that among the items of expense the last year, were $3 000 for tea, $500 for oysters and $300 for whisky and cigars The paupers in that institution must live almost as well as some of the tradors who are fed at Government expense

Governor Brownlow's Message

The following is a portion of the recent Message of Governor Brownlow to the Tennessee Legislature, which has caused considerable stir in political circles

I have already alluded with pleasure, to the general disposition of the masses of our people to pursue their peaceful avocations and but for the sad experience of 1861, I should feel no apprehension that they could be again betrayed into revolutionary movements But as what has happened once may, from similar influences, occur again, it is my duty to call your attention to the fact that disloyal newspapers together with unprincipled and designing stump speakers have been untiring in their efforts to set on foot a scheme of State revolution These speakers and writers urge and predict the overthrow of the State Government, and some of them have fixed a limit to days or weeks to its existence declaring that the work shall be done' Many of the delegates returning from the great political conspiracy which assembled at Philadelphia on the 14th of August last declared publicly and at secret meetings of their cliques that they had seen and conversed with the President and agreed with him upon a programme for the overthrow of the State Government At Knoxville these agitators were for a time outspoken and apparently determined At Nashville similar characters called a Convention to meet there for the avowed purpose of initiating a revolution Either because the people of the State did not sympathize with the movement or because they feared the displeasure of the nation, they postponed their meeting from time to time, and finally gave it the appearance of a common political gathering It is true these men are not the fighting men of the late rebellion They are, for the

SATURDAY MORNING, DEC 22, 1866

Declines to Come to Judgment.

Shops that deal in 'Brummagen' wares often have show windows which are all ablaze with splendid looking articles in imitation of silver, gold and diamonds But all do not know that these bazaar like exhibitions are merely cheap displays Like the keeper of this class of shops, there are people in other occupations who laying claim to superior wisdom, undertake to maintain their pretensions by a dazzling display of fragmentary knowledge A wiseacre who has scarcely learning enough to entitle him to the benefit of clergy, comes from abroad and sets up among us as a teacher of politics, law, literature and morals, parading his scrap knowledge with all the pains if not with all the art, of a dealer in "Brummagen" wares By a prodigious display of cheap learning, he undertakes and expects, both to astonish and convince every reader and every hearer He complains that "fools rush in where angels fear to tread," he appeals to his party, telling them that, "who would be free, themselves must strake the blow," he informs others that his opponents have "just enough of learning to misquote," and tells the world that the government which is "best administered is best" Not content with furnishing all this astonishing information (which of course other people never before heard of,) he rises to higher themes With the assistance of the learned, but quiet and unobtrusive legal gentleman who has long been known as the dry nurse of the Democratic party of Oregon—(the same gentleman who once had so distressing a mania for compromises)—he prepares arguments from the "publicists" to prove that in the late rebellion one party was about as far in the wrong as the other, or rather, that both were equally in the right, or rather again, that the rebels were somewhat nearer right than the Government they fought to subvert. Vattel is brought in five times a week to establish these points. Paragraphs and sentences, clauses and parts of clauses from his work, appear in confused array, with such comments as may best seem sufficient to turn the original text out of its natural meaning. The two commentators, as they discourse on these themes, straining them "through the pressed nostril, spectacle-bestrid," doubtless imagine themselves the embodiment of all human wisdom Their inferences and deductions from the writings of the "publicists" are well worthyto have emanated from persons of very high pretensions "Vattel says of the parties to a civil war, 'Who shall judge them? Who shall pronounce on which side the right or wrong lies? On earth' they have no common superior"' Therefore, argue our doctors, loyalty has no right to judge disloyalty; patriots have no right to condemn traitors or even to call traitors, traitors. This learning does not come from any "rural academy" in this country, but probably from that celebrated academy which Gulliver found at Lagado It is very easy for our learned doctors to quote from the "publicists" to prove that the parties to a civil war have no common superior, and that other nations have no right to judge them; but it would be somewhat more difficult to prove from Vattel that a nation against whose authority a portion of its citizens have rebelled, has not lawful power, and no moral right to judge the case between itself and its rebellious citizens. The parties to our civil war had no common superior, but it will probably not be questioned that one of them is superior to the other. Vattel is hardly an authority on points upon which he gave no opinion. He did not say that a nation has no right to judge those who may revolt from its authority and inaugurate civil war, but that other nations have no right to judge between parties so contending. No nation ever yet put down a rebellion without asserting and enforcing its right to judge and punish those who had resisted its authority. To say that a nation has no right to do this, is to assert a new doctrine,—a doctrine eminently worthy of one who thinks to palm off his fragments and scraps of learning for profound wisdom. Our doctors, it appears, don't want to judge between loyalty and treason They wouldn't have an opinion for the world And why? Because it isn't popular in the North to decide that the rebellion was wholly right and that they who resisted it were wholly wrong; and because further, the doctors who quote irrelevant matter from Vattel, could not think of doing so great violence to their principles as to decide that the rebels were wrong and that loyal men were right Therefore they peremptorily refuse to come to judgment at all

The Case Stated.

Little dependence is to be placed in the New York Times, yet when that paper is on the right side of a question, many of its articles are among the best published in any of the leading journals The following from one of its late issues is remarkable for its clear presentation of facts

The forms of our civil polity are such, that, while they give great power to the President, they establish a very positive limit beyond which he is entirely subordinate to the Legislature. When that limit is reached, he is almost powerless Congress may override his vetoes, overrule his appointments, make void his diplomacy, nullify the projects and action of his Secretaries, and render his policy, as a whole and in all its parts, of no practical effect. Not only so, but Congress can compel him to be the administrator and Executive agent of a policy which he opposes, both as regards domestic and foreign affairs, and can enforce upon him courses of action against which he has exerted his whole power. The final logical deduction of the whole matter is expressed in the fact, that while the President cannot in any case interfere with the existence of Congress or the position of any of its members, Congress is invested with a power that may enable it to remove the President from office altogether We had not a few practical illustrations of several of these statements during last session of Congress, the most notable of which were the overriding of the President's veto of the Civil Rights Bill, and compelling him to execute the terms of the Freedmen's Bureau Bill, which he had not only vetoed, but strongly denounced. Members of Congress threaten to enforce still others of the powers which this body possess as against the Executive, and there are ultrasits who would be more than willing to carry to a point the highest power of the Legislature in the impeachment and removal of the President.

Hence it appears that the President has carried his opposition to the policy of Congress and the people to the farthest limit to which he can go Congress can pass laws over his veto and compel him to enforce them He can have no policy in opposition to the will of two-thirds of that body, and it was presumption and usurpation in him, since the President has no powers except such as are simply executive, ever to have had a policy The considerations presented in the above extract show the absurdity of the idea entertained by many, that he still has the power to enforce his policy if he would only take the responsibility of enforcing it.

The Boston Post, the leading Democratic journal of New England, is out in the most urgent manner for negro suffrage. It says "There can be no valid objection to the prevalence of the universal suffrage principle The qualifications which are peculiar to Massachusetts we should be glad to see adopted in every State in the Union We would like to see them set up as a common standard of suffrage to which all men of all conditions and colors should duly report themselves for examination Color ought to have no more to do with the matter than size" Only imagine the difficulty the Democratic leaders will have in making the "sturdy Democracy" of Long Tom, Soap Creek and Santiam Forks understand and acquiesce in such reasoning as this!

The Executive office of Colorado has been removed from Denver to Golden City, the seat of government of the Territory

SHALL THE VANQUISHED DICTATE TERMS?—Gov Jenkins of Georgia shares the notions of all his fellow rebels of the South, and of many Copperhead editors of the North, in regard to the questions decided by the war. In his late message he says

At the termination of hostilities, it was right and proper that the previously resisting States should, in the most unequivocal and formal manner, abandon such resistance—should rescind all they had done in antagonism to, and do whatever was necessary and proper to place themselves in constitutional relation with that Government All this, we believe, Georgia has done Beyond this, in acting upon any proposed change in the fundamental law, even in this critical juncture, my advice is, that her legislators act with the same unflinching firmness, that they would have exercised in the past, or would exercise in the future, when in full connection and unambiguous position. Any other rule of action may involve sacrifices of interest and of principle which magnanimity would not exact, and self respect could not make.

In other words, when the rebel States were unable longer to continue in rebellion—when the North succeeded in establishing the authority of the Union over the section which had rebelled against it—"it was right and proper" that the rebels should themselves decide what "was necessary and proper to place themselves in constitutional relation with" the Federal Government This is the rebel and Copperhead doctrine but the doctrine of Unionists is very different.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—We are indebted to the telegraph operator here for the following information, which was received here last (Friday) evening by letter from the operator at Monticello

A young man named J Miles, son of Hon Henry Miles, Speaker of the House of Representatives of Washington Territory, on his way to Cowlits Prairie, was killed by breaking of his neck caused by being thrown from his horse. Mr Miles, in company with two men, left Henry Jackson's, twelve miles south of Monticello, this morning The wind was blowing very heavy, and many trees were falling When four miles south of Jackson's a large tree fell nearly lengthwise with the road, breaking down in its fall a small tree, which fell across the road Mr. Miles was soon to fall from his horse, but they could not tell whether the tree struck him, or if that the horse, frightened by the noise, jumped aside, throwing him off He fell upon his head, breaking his neck

The lane is down most of the way to Drew's, and nobody knows how much further.

Frank Blair is beaten for the Missouri Legislature He is beaten not only upon the whole number of legal votes polled, but upon the whole number of votes, rebels and all "So," says the St. Louis Democrat, "the great Blair, ex Chief of Cavalry, ex-candidate for Senator, ex candidate for Secretary of War, and member of the Blair family, is found to be beaten by Branscomb! What this dilapidated statesman will next attempt, we really cannot guess"

OPPOSITION ON THE COLUMBIA.—It rumor may be believed, there will be a line of opposition steamers from Portland to the Dalles, which will make lively times on the river and reduce fare to such low rates that everybody will have an opportunity to travel, as well as everybody has an opportunity to buy a good suit of clothes now of KOHN & FISHEL, No 111, Front street—they selling cheaper than can be purchased elsewhere

"'TIS WELL."—ELLSWORTH & CARDWELL, 89 First street, (Postoffice Block) would again call attention to the fact, that unless those persons wanting PICTURES call at their GALLERY before January 1st, they will be sure to regret it. The distinguished operator of this establishment leaves the city after NEW YEAR'S DAY, and all those who desire SUN PEARLS, CARTES DE VISITE AMBROTYPES, etc, in the very first style of the art, should go at once Negatives taken in all kinds of weather

PICTURE GALLERY.—W E JONES having taken the gallery corner of Front and Morrison streets, Portland, would announce to the public that he is making PHOTOGRAPHS from Locket to Life size AMBROTYPES MELAINOTYPES SUN PEARLS and CARTE DE VISITE plain or enameled in the best style of the art If you want card pictures with the most beautiful enamel at lower prices than can be had in the city or State go to JONES GALLERY, corner of Front and Morrison dec7 1d3m2p

DOMESTIC PRODUCE.—It is not pleasant to be always harping somebody but we feel constrained to call attention of our farmers occasionally for their short comings The family produce market furnishes a general text and we have something in particular to say about eggs butter cheese, etc etc For some time eggs were in lively demand at 45 then 45 and finally 50 cents While the shower figures ruled the market was scarcely supplied but when they reached 50 cents, everybody seemed to be awake all at once, with an impressed it at the eggs must be immediately got into market and consequently there came a rush. Stocks of eggs that had apparently been kept for weeks or months came to many of them dirty and in miserable condition People were afraid of them and bought scantily of the dealers Though fresh eggs have been all the time in good demand the general effect of bringing in large lots of ones was to depress the market, and dealers are now glad to purchase at 40 or even 35 cents. The mistake made by farmers is in keeping their eggs for a big price The true policy is to sell them while fresh and to bring them in clean If they do that and thereby keep the market steady they will sell more eggs during the year and realize a larger sum in the aggregate than by holding on and getting occasionally a large price for a few days and then a small one for the in some of the time A steady fair price and a good article, are better for both buyer and seller The demand is really for fresh eggs and those others can get in just upon the producer

More than half the butter brought to this market is so badly put up as to be worthless for export or even table use here It is very much that a lot comes in that has to be worked over, before being exposed for sale A great deal of it never can be made fit for the table The consequence is that the dairyman must content himself with a price much below that which consumers are willing to pay for California or Eastern It is no uncommon thing to find in the outgoing steamers freight lots, of fifty half barrels domestic butter and on the incoming freight lists one hundred half barrels California or Eastern. If inquiry be made it will be found that more money per pound is paid there for the latter than is obtained for the former The reason is that consumers prefer to pay 40 cents for good that 50 cents for poor There is no good reason why Oregon butter should not sell in Oregonians at least, to the exclusion of all foreign make. That it does not do so is attributable to a totally slovenly manner in which butter-makers put up

Even if they will It is a standing shame to the State that there has never been a time within the last ten years, when Oregon butter has not had to compete, at a disadvantage, with California or Eastern, at our own doors.

Oregon cheese is in the same category Half of our people make grind-stones instead of cheese. We are informed that scientific analyses of the grasses and herbs upon which cows mostly feed disclose the fact that they contain great purity, the essential elements to enter into good butter and cheese-producing milk The best dairy butter and cheese which comes into this market, comes from the Columbia and Lewis river farms the reason is, that more attention is paid to the making and quality it is good simple into the market. The people down that way are learning a thing or two from the experience of the past

THE FALLS OF CORN.—The following may be of assistance to many persons who have to do with agricultural matters. We clip from an exchange paper In England of pure gold are mixed with 2 ounces of alloy, this is called 22 carats fine, and is valued at £3, 17s. 10½d. per ounce. In the United States 90 ounces of pure gold are mixed with 10 ounces of alloy of no value, 90 ounces of coin is worth $1,800 dollars ounce of coin $18. One ounce of pure gold, 1,000 fine, is coined into 10 19-100. A sovereign of England (new) weighs 5 pwts. 3 grains, (worn ones not so much) and passes for a pound. By the above statement you may compute the intrinsic value of a sovereign or a pound By the help of a little arithmetic you will find that a pound sterling is $4 84c dollars, and a little over Less than one hundred years ago, one of the States passed a law that if any one owed a debt of 100 shillings he should be allowed to settle it with 2 pounds, which was called 21 shillings, and weighed 2 pwts 9 grains Since then the British mint changed its coinage, and made sovereigns of 20 shillings. 21 sovereigns of 20 grains by avoirdupois shillings value. The 1 Maize (1866) made eagles with the same number of 11 pwts. 6 grains, 11 12 fine, $10 they were much more valuable than silver; in 1803 Congress made them a number for $10 63, and made a new coinage with the number, 9-10 fine, which are the eagles that people now talk about, but do not often see In the changes of the coinage of the two nations you may see why a pound was once called $4 44, and now $4 80@4 85 Both are worth $4 86 38-100, if not worn

BOARD.—The Committee on Streets and Public Property made a report to the Council Thursday evening, recommending the report of Street Commissioner Davis upon the condition of the B street side-walks. The contract specified that the space under the side-walks should be filled with earth. This has not been done, and the result will be that, if the work of grading go on, there will be a settling before spring of street-filling into the adjoining cellars. The filling upon which the stores are being built is not such that the contractor is obliged to lay down a good foundation before the sewers can be driven. The horse that should step beyond the foundation, would in very soon be floundering in a bed of mud. Either the side-walk filling ought to be taken out or the grading be stopped

VANCOUVER ITEMS.—The Good Templars of Vancouver have a sociable at their Hall on Monday evening.

Some of the Germans have organized a musical society. They hold regular meetings once each week

Mr. Howell, proprietor of the Metropolis Hall, will give a ball the evening of Christmas.....The editor of the Register has been presented with a boot which beats all boots he ever saw It measures 19½ inches in circumference, and was grown on S B Masters' farm.....The Misses of Connelly have recently opened a boarding house

Mr. Hodges is engaged in rebuilding and refitting the house formerly occupied by Col Ingalls, on the Military Reserve, to be used as his residence.....Capt Kelly is in charge of the post at Fort Vancouver, since his return from the Upper Willamette.

A VANCOUVER VERDICT.—In the case of Martha Stoll, charged with violating Ordinance 223, in the case of indictment against Chas Lee on Second street, the jury rendered a verdict, finding the defendant guilty of using the language specified in the complaint but, in the opinion of the jury, not guilty of violating the Ordinance The jury was discharged and then the question arose whether the verdict was a conviction or not of the defendant The Recorder did not decide the matter, but continued the case till this morning

SUIT.—The bill of the U S Navy against the owners of the steamer Colilla for towing the dredge around town, is a very considerable item in the expense of keeping the Willamette bare If that work is to go on year after year, as it possible, would it be a policy for the city to build a tug and do the towing It might find considerable creative work for it in the dredger towing, and thus be a source of revenue to the city treasury

CIRCUIT COURT—SHATTUCK, JUDGE.—The following proceedings were had in this Court yesterday, the 21st.

Mary Rose vs. Emily Reed et al order for publication of summons and cause continued to next term

Mark B Leland vs. Lilian Bryant, suit for divorce, submitted on testimony and argument of counsel.

The most of the day was occupied in hearing arguments upon various motions and demurrers

POLICE.—Secretary May was strolling round town a day or two since, as much on his intent, we suppose, that he didn't call on these deponents. We forgive you, Mr. [illegible] the offence May not be well of the [illegible] who came down with him, did call on us with all his accustomed jolliness beaming out on each feature of his face The Colonel cracked some of his jokes and felt so happy

—We acknowledge the receipt of a very polite and cordial invitation to attend certain ceremonies of a fraternity character, at the "Cliff House," Oregon City, on the evening of Christmas. Nothing less sacred than a genuine engagement with a female relative of ours at home on that day, could prevent us from attending the ball's bliss at the "Cliff"

RAISING UP TO THE BANK.—In consequence of the late rise in the river the dredger, yesterday morning, was hauled up to the bank again During the first days of this week, very good progress was made. Mr Walker has succeeded in getting all the machinery into first-rate working order. No breakage has occurred for twelve days.

WAY FREIGHTS.—Per Senator, Friday Dec. 21st 76 sacks flour, 965 boxes apples, 1 case woolen goods, 3 boxes soap, 2 kegs butter, 6 boxes, 8 half bbls

Per Alert, same day 1 659 quarter sacks flour 469 empty bags, 9 bf bbls butter 4 boxes eggs, 1 pkge, 2 pounds bacon, 1 cask, 203 sacks feed, 1 bale woolen goods

MR. CARDINELL'S BALL.—The dancing class under the tuition of Mr. Cardinell, together with their parents and invited guests, had a very pleasant party, as we are informed on Thursday evening in the hall of the Professor's dancing school. We understand that Mr Cardinell a short time over seventy gentlemen

BURGLARY.—The store of Mr. Aaron, corner of Front and Fourth streets, was entered during the night of Thursday, and the till robbed of $45 50 and a few dimes. The entrance was effected through the door by means of a key or burglar's tool; the door was found open on Saturday morning

H.B. KELLOGG Chief Quartermaster of this Department has been relieved from active service in the army Col Kellogg has long and faithfully served the Government. He will, however for the present remain at his post of duty at Portland.

ARREST.—Officer [illegible] arrested during Thursday night a man who had entered the house of Mr Durkheimer on Third street, near the corner of Jefferson and stole he [illegible] $16 from Mr D's vest pocket in the room where he was sleeping

APPROACHING THE END.—The Circuit Court has got pretty near through its docket and will be able to adjourn, probably to-day or early next week The term has been a busy one of five weeks duration.

ASSAULT AND BATTERY.—W E Hill pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of assault and battery upon James Walker, and paid a fine of $10 and costs A similar charge against Walters was dismissed.

A PLEASANT CALL.—We had the pleasure of receiving a friendly call, a day or two since from Mr Struve the publisher of the Vancouver Register Our brother looks as cheerful as right sort.

OUR NEWS.—We heard it stated yesterday that Mr A. Zeller had entered into the proper bonds and assumed the office of [illegible] to which he was recently appointed

STILL DOWN.—Mr Guild, the operator here, informs us the line is O K to Yreka but is down somewhere south of there and that it is impossible to cross Scott mountain The late almost terrific winds which have prevailed south of here have probably placed it out of human power to get any despatches through for some days.

CONSTABLE'S SALE.—Kilbourn will dispose of furniture, fancy goods buggies harness etc. at auction this day

STILL IN DEMAND.—The two elegant new winter suits lately introduced at Barnum Bros are still eagerly sought for They combine neatness durability and comfort and are selling at low prices

AT PRIVATE SALE.—Mr Cohen having sold at auction the greater part of his stock of jewelry will dispose of the balance on very favorable terms at private sale, until New Year He has yet on hand a choice lot of ladies jewelry such as finger and ear rings breast pins neck chains lockets, etc

HOLIDAY PRESENTS.—WEIL BROS have a large and varied assortment of fine dress goods—such as Moirs antique silk dresses, French and Irish poplins etc—which they are selling off at cost affording an excellent opportunity for the purchase of HOLIDAY PRESENTS They also offer at cost, the choicest stock of custom made clothing and Gents furnishing goods.

IMPORTANCE OF HAVING DAVIS' PAIN KILLER ALWAYS ON HAND.
Wonderful Cure of the Rev D L Brayton, Missionary in India, who was stung by a Scorpion
Extract from his letter, published in the Baptist Missionary Magazine
"For the first time since I have been in India, I have been stung by a scorpion. I went out this morning to my exercises, as usual, at early dawn, and having occasion to use an old box, on taking off the cover I put my hand on a scorpion, which immediately resented the insult by thrusting its sting into the palm of my hand. The most instaneous and severe pain which darted through the system is quite incredible; what an awful virulent pain their sting must contain! I flew to my bottle of DAVIS PAIN KILLER and found it to be true to its name, after a few moments relief I inserted a small piece of sponge, bathed it on my hand, and went about my exercises, feeling no more particular inconvenience."

To-morrow

We can't recall the vanished past
Nor on the future reckon,
The light winged hours, flying past,
Us to embrace them beckon

No more let Folly shroud thine eyes,
Live while 'tis called To-day;
What if your setting sun should rise
To warm thy lifeless clay

Life is not given 'tis but lent—
And thousands yet would borrow,
For past for present time misspent,
A day of grace to-morrow

Oh day of hope oh day of fear
Foreboding joy or sorrow
That comest not, though ever near,
To morrow I still To morrow!

The Royal Mews

A London correspondent recently passed through the Royal Mews, the stable belonging to the crown, and he furnishes quite a lengthy description of the stud used by Queen Victoria. The Mews are situated at the extreme north western corner of Buckingham Palace Gardens, and viewed externally, are of modest appearance But once inside, and you are impressed with the air of royalty all around First, seven horses are noticed, of the class called bnaks, which are used for general purposes The state harness room is described as a beautiful sight. "To the left, against the wall, hangs ten sets or sides of morocco harness, elaborately ornamented with the royal arms, crowns, the rose, shamrock and thistle buckles, and every other introducable device and excuse for effect appertaining to royalty, being in pure gold over copper Above each of these are suspended the bridles, bits, and other paraphernalia to the cream colored horses, and cost 500 guineas per set, and were made for William IV. They are apparently as fresh as ever. There are several plainer state harnesses, very elegant and beautifully ornamented in exquisite brass work. The black horse set, used by the Master of the Horse, is also beautiful, indeed, the whole room is full of the most interesting trappings and housings of ancient and modern saddlery, reminding one rather of the armory in the "Tower." In No. 2 are located the twelve clarence and brougham, capital specimens of England's half and London show horses The town carriage horses present a fine appearance There are thirty-two of them, magnificent animals, bright bays with black legs and flowing manes and tails, none of them standing less than sixteen hands They are Yorkshire bred, and are selected with great care. The cream and black Hanoverians, however attract the most attention. Both colors are said to be very beautiful. "Of the first, the creams, there are now eleven, one—a three year old, the last taken up—shows no falling off in our stock. Of the sort, they are all decidedly match less, immensely powerful, Roman nosed, intelligent heads, wonderful crests, with flowing, wavy manes and yellow tinted tails almost touching the ground. They put you in mind of the ancient and classical charger, and no doubt there is much to be said and written on the subject of their identity. Rubens gives us something of the sort, and the Flanders breed may, perhaps, be the original of these They were first introduced into this country by King George II. and have since been kept up with much care and expense, continuing the breed in its pure state by the importation of mares. The Hampton Court paddocks is where they are reared, and where they may be seen in their juvenile state. One of the horses at present in the Mews was presented by his Majesty, the lately deposed King of Hanover, but it is in no respect a better looking animal than the 'home' bred ones The above applies equally to the 'blacks,' of which there are now only eight in the stables. These are only used by the Master of Horse on state occasions and at royal funerals; they are not, however, such majestic, imposing looking animals as the lighter colored ones." After these, the greys, of which there are several pair, Arabian bred, were inspected. English phaeton horses, thoroughbred riding horses and ponies of various sorts complete the royal stud. Of town and state carriages, there are ten, most of them elegant, neat, and yet regal looking. "With a little extra ceremony, and a louder beat of the drum, we were at last introduced to the Mausoleum of the great gold coach of all gold coaches ever dedicated to the pomps and vanities of kings. It is certainly a curiosity in its way, and mighty fine, and I have no doubt were well worth seeing as a relic of an age of folly and extravagance. It is now exactly 105 years old, being built in the reign of George III., but it looks little the worse for time, none for wear, and I dare say is nearly as fresh as ever; it weighs upwards of four tons, the wheels are six feet high, and it has a double perch beneath the body; this is hung as it were on a swinging principle, which, no doubt, gives it great ease The carvings are very clever and in capital preservation, the paintings on the panels are by Cipriani, representing the four seasons, and the whole bauble cost seven thousand pounds." To the main building of the stables an excellently proportioned riding school is attached where the Princes and Princesses of the British throne have been taught those feats in horsemanship, and the graceful seat, which have never failed to command admiration. The Master of the Horse, who ranks as third great officer of state, has control of the entire establishment. This office has been held by many of the proudest nobles in the kingdom, among whom may be mentioned the Dukes of Norfolk and Wellington, and the Earl of Jersey. The present incumbent is the high minded turfman and popular sportsman, the Duke of Beaufort, who, at will be remembered, restored a portion of England's prestige by winning the Grand Prix de Paris for 1866, and then having the honor of receiving the cup offered to encourage the breeding of French horses, from the hands of Napoleon himself When the young wives of royalty are introduced to such horses as we find in the Mews, and at an early age are taught the value of blood, is it a matter of surprise that the crown takes so much interest in those institutions which promote the breeding of the best strains and preserve the type pure in England? We think not. Expensive as the establishment may be, it is a real benefit to the English people. A feeling of pride is engendered and every inducement is offered to keep the blood horses from degenerating into nameless mongrels Royalty smiles upon the turf, and all over the kingdom breeders are encouraged to produce animals that are game, speedy and of symmetrical form Under such a regime, the breed cannot deteriorate, and the purity of the standard is preserved. The result is highly beneficial to the nation as well as individuals, and through this influence the people are taught to respect the stock of the country, because it constitutes a great element of the country's wealth"

Swinburne's Defence.

[From the New York Evening Post.]

Algernon Charles Swinburne, like Byron, has replied to his critics—not in poems, but in a prose pamphlet, entitled "Notes on Poems and Reviews." The temper of the reply is sound, and Swinburne is evidently right in the line he takes up the poems in "Leaves Vesperis" one by one, tells us why he wrote them and what he meant, defends himself from the charge of vulgarity, and cites classical authority without stint. Of "Anactoria" he says

"In this poem I have simply expressed, or tried to express, that violence of affection between one and another which hardens into rage and deepens into despair. The keynote which I have here touched was struck long since by Sappho. We in England are taught, are compelled under penalties to learn, to construe, and to repeat, as school boys, the unpermissible and incomparable verses of that supreme poet, and I at least am grateful for the training. I have wished, and I have even ventured to hope, that I might be in time competent to translate into a baser and later language the divine words which, even when a boy, I could not but recognize as divine The hope, if, indeed, I dared even entertain such a hope, I soon found fallacious. To translate the two odes and the remaining fragments of Sappho is the one impossible task."

"Dolores," like "Faustine," he says, is so distinctly symbolic and fanciful that it cannot justly be amenable to judgment as a study in the school of realism, "Faustine" is "the reverie of a man gazing on the bitter and vicious loveliness of a face as common and as cheap as the morality of reviewers, and dreaming of past lives in which this fair face may have held a nobler or fitter station, the imperial profile may have been Faustine's, the thirsty lips a Monad's, when first she learned to drink blood or wine, to waste the love and ruin the lives of men, through Greece and again through Rome she may have passed with the same face which now comes before us dishonored and discrowned"

After whitewing his productions in this manner, Swinburne goes on to declare that he has never written for "the purblind and prurient," and never will, and adds

"Loathsome and abominable,' and full of unspeakable foulness,' must be that man's mind who could here discern evil, unclean and unhuman the animal which could suck from this mystical rose of ancient loveliness [meaning the "Mormaphroditus"] the foul and rancid juices of an obscene fancy It were a scavenger's office to descend with torch or spade into such depths of mental sewerage, to plunge or peer into subterranean sloughs of mind impossible alike to enlighten or to cleanse"

This is strong if not angry English, and, in fact, the tone of the whole reply shows that Swinburne understands the art of scolding He closes with this short passage

"When England has again such a school of poetry, so headed and so followed, as she has had at least twice before, or as France has now, when all higher forms of the various art are included within the larger limits of a stronger race, then, if such a day should ever rise or return upon us it will be once more remembered that the office of adult art is neither puerile or feminine, but virile, that its purity is not that of the cloister or the harem that all things are good in its sight, out of which good work may be produced Then the press will be as important as the pulpit to dictate the laws and remove the landmarks of men and those will be laughed at who demand from one thing the qualities of another—who seek for sermons in sonnets and morality in music Then all accepted work will be noble and chaste in the wider masculine sense, not truncated and curtailed, but outspoken and full grown, art will be pure by instinct and fruitful by nature, no clipped and forced growth of unhealthy heat and unnatural air all baseness and all unreality will fall from it and be forgotten, and no one will then need to assert, in defense of work done for the work's sake, the simple laws of his art, which no one will then be permitted to impugn"

The best comment upon this pamphlet which we have seen in the English journals is the terse verdict of the Pall Mall Gazette "It is not an exculpation, but an epitaph 'Here lies the moral sense of Algernon Charles Swinburne—stillborn!'"

THE SERPENTS OF CEYLON.—The cyo snake, so called for a supposed habit of his of striking cattle in the eye while grazing, is without exception the most beautiful and the least repulsive of all snakes It is about four feet long, of brightest grass green—the intense green of the English meadow in early summer It is very thin and graceful in its movements, and although very rapid when moving, is so instantaneously rigid when alarmed, and adapts itself so wonderfully to the shape and hue of the grass or reeds amongst which it moves, that, although watching one intently at your very feet, it is most difficult to discriminate between it and the vegetation with which it mingles One day, while walking at Kandy, I saw what I thought was a large reed, or grass of a most beautiful color, standing erect on the road some two or three feet from the bank, and it was not till I could have touched it with my hand that I saw it was on eye snake coiled up in the road its head and neck raised about twelve inches from the ground, and as rigid and immovable as if formed of malachite. Of all the snakes the cobra is the most beautiful, and when erect, with its hood expanded, gracefully moving in time to the music, it is certainly a most striking and fascinating object, its eye, which is generally leaden and heavy, becomes, under the influence of music intensely bright and glittering This effect is heightened by the fact of snakes having no eye lids, the eye, although so beautiful, is not strong, and cannot bear any strong glare. This was well known to the ancients, who had an idea that the flesh of an emerald deprived them of sight The poison from the fang of a cobra is like one or two drops of laudanum —Sullivan's Bungalow and Tent.

A Brahmin who had quitted his wife and this world, appeared at the gate of Brahma's paradise and asked for admission The God inquired

"Have you been in purgatory?"

"No, but I have been married"

"Come in, then, that is the same thing"

He refused entrance to a man who twice married, as "paradise was not made for fools,"

ILLINOIS.—At the late election Springfield cast thirty-nine more votes than Quincy and one hundred and three more than Peoria, and so is claimed to rank in population, in Illinois, next to Chicago.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE

WEEKLY EDITION.

Wholesale and Jobbing Prices.

PORTLAND, FRIDAY, 2 P M. } Dec 21, 1866.

During the last week, the Richter is the only departure from this port She took away a full cargo of produce for the Victoria market, but was unable to carry all offered Since the sailing of the Pacific, freights have accumulated again till our store houses are pretty well filled In consequence of the impossibility of getting produce off, the movement down the Willamette has slackened perceptibly. It will, however, be revived as soon as ready shipping can be had.

The character of trade with Victoria is much improved as compared with former periods Since the financial difficulties, it has approached a cash system, credit being given only to most unquestionable parties

Flour and grain are drooping for want of tonnage to convey them away The nominal price of leading brands is $6 but no large quantity could be got off for $5 50

The shipment of fruit for the present month will be nearly if not fully equal to that of the corresponding month of previous years

Bacon is dull at prices named Lard has declined and is dull at quotations Furs or decline in either, however, is not anticipated, though at present prices there is no margin for shipment

To Soldiers Claiming Bounties

UNDER THE

EQUALIZATION BOUNTY BILL!

THE UNDERSIGNED, HAVING RECENTLY RETURNED from Washington City, where he has made the proper arrangements for the collections of the Extra Bounty of $100 allowed to all soldiers enlisted after the 15th day of April, 1864, for a period of not less than three years, and $50 for soldiers enlisted for a period of not less than two years

Persons entitled to the benefits of said Bounty will find it to their interest to attend to its collection at once Having an Agent at Washington and personal knowledge of the mode of making collections through the Department I can get returns promptly.

☞ Call with your Discharge, and two witnesses for identification at the Publication office of the Daily Oregonian, No 5 Washington St Portland

A BUSHWILER, Claim Agent.

RULES AND REGULATIONS FOR THE PAYMENT OF BOUNTIES, UNDER THE ACT TO EQUALIZE BOUNTIES APPROVED JULY 28, 1866

WAR DEPARTMENT, ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE, WASHINGTON, September 15, 1866

1 All applications shall be filed within the period of six months, from the 1st day of October 1866, and before any payments are made, shall be examined by regiments, battalions, or other separate organizations, and no application filed after that period shall be settled until after the former shall have been paid.

2. No application shall be entertained unless accompanied by the original discharge of the soldier and the affidavit required by the fourteenth section of the Act, and the further affidavit that he has not received, nor is he entitled to receive from the United States, under any law now in force prior to the 1st day of July, 1866, more than $100 bounty for any and all military service rendered by him during the late rebellion; or rendered above the amount therein claimed

3 All applications for the additional bounty authorized by this Act from surviving soldiers shall be in the form hereinafter prescribed, and the evidence of identity shall be the same as is now required and applications from the heirs of deceased soldiers shall be in the form now required by the Treasury Department.

4 As soon as the examination of the rolls of any regiment, or other independent organization shall have been properly acted upon the Paymaster General shall take the necessary steps for their preservation.

5 A register shall be kept in the Paymaster General's office, and also in the office of the Second Auditor of all claims presented under the law, in which the claimants will be classified by regiments etc. If the claims be allowed, the amount of bounty paid to each will be noted, and if rejected the cause of rejection will be distinctly stated

6 In the applications for bounty as required by the third of these rules, the affidavit shall state each and every period of service rendered by the claimant and also that he was not served otherwise than as therein stated

7 Organizations irregularly in the service of the United States, or called out for special purposes, as State Militia Home Guards, etc, and not included in the general bounty laws are not included within the meaning of the Act.

8. Soldiers enlisted for three years or during the war, who were discharged by reason of the termination of the war, shall be considered as having served out the period of their enlistment, and are entitled to bounty under this act

9 The heirs only of heirs claimants for bounty under this Act, must be proven to have existed at the date of its passage Parents shall receive jointly the bounty to which they may be entitled as heirs, unless the father has abandoned the support of his family in which case it shall be paid to the mother Non residence in the United States shall not be a bar to the claim of heirs, who would otherwise legally inherit

The provisions of the Act exclude from its benefits the following classes

1 Those who after serving the full period of their enlistment were dishonorably discharged at its expiration

2 Those discharged during enlistment by way of favor or punishment

3 Those discharged on account of disability contracted in the service, but not occasioned by wounds received in the line of duty," who shall not have previously served two or three years respectively at the time of discharge

4 Those discharged on account of disability existing at the time of their enlistment.

5 The heirs of those who have died since their discharge of wounds or disease not contracted in the service and in the line of duty

6 The surviving soldiers and heirs of deceased soldiers who, under previous laws have received or are entitled to receive a bounty of more than $100 from the United States

7 The surviving soldiers, as well as the heirs of deceased soldiers, whose such soldiers have deserted sold, assigned, loaned transferred, exchanged or given away their final discharge papers, or any interest in the bounty provided by this or any other Act of Congress

8 The Act of the 28th of July 1866 creates no right of inheritance beyond the vesting in the law in the which these heirs received were entitled to receive the original bounty and debars certain classes of brothers and sisters of heirs that were entitled to receive the original bounty from any claim for the additional bounty provided by the Act of 1866

Respectfully referred to the Attorney General for his opinion on the point whether the rules and regulations as is within amended are in conformity with law
